PEKING WOULD LIKE TRADE WITH COLONY

Communist China is by no means shutting its door to trade with Hong Kong, and any propasals from Chinese commercial organisations in Hong Kong for reciprocal trade that do not clash with the country's trade policy, are always welcome.

This statement was said to have been made by top officials in Peking to Mr. Y. K. Mok, one of the leaders of the 25-men trade mission from Hong Kong, which has made a 70-day tour of Communist China.

The mission, which returnto the Colony on Saturday, issued an official release the same evening giving a favourable impression of what they had seen of trade and industrial recovery under Communist administration and

No trace and yet been found a number of guerities who disappeared mysteriously on Sunday before the two American blockbusting columns sayent into the bulge. Early on Bunday morning about 60 Communists each were seen crossing the river in the middle of the bulge area but no sign of these particular groups has been noted since. As a result there is a big question mark or where there Reds have gone and if they will try to cut the American supply routes again further behind the lines.

SUPERIORITY IN AIR O COMPENSATION FOR WEAKNESS

What's happened to air power in Korea? Why in face of slashing air attacks from every direction has the Communist Army, with no air cover, pushed the Allied ground forces to a beachhead with only a 120-mile perimeter?

The first answer you get from all sides is that the Air Force and Navy Air Arm have done a superb job but that the ground forces are so badly outnumbered they have never been able to exploit the tremendous advantage of air dominance.

Apparently it has come as a bitter surprise to many that air power has not totally compensated for ground weakness and turned the tide. Perhaps, the explanation for that surprise in firstly, too enthusiastic claims of air power advocates although no responsible Air officers and certainly no Navy officers are on record that armies are no longer needed, and secondly, after World War II people found reliance on airpower more comfortable than such things as conscription or UMT (universal military training) and but air force officers objected to expect too much of it.

by General Walton Walker, according to air force officers, with so countering the Red army to stop a waterfall at the bottom and that well-trained tactical that the United Nations ground forces were not shoved out of Koren long since.

In the Korean war, of course, the air force has been debarred from using pure strategie bombing-the type of air war which on impartial strategic bombing mirvey said was decisive In Europe. The reason is that the North Korean supply sources are not in North Korea to any great

Varied opinions

Another factor in the air power situation has been difference of opinion-now preity well ironed out-between the army and air force on the employment of bombers.

Briefly, high air force officers argued in invour of concentrated effort soon after the war started to cut the enemy lines of communication and transport running North-South across the Parallel. They contended there would be a better chance then than later to saw off the Red army in the field.

The army apparently insisted, however, that the situation at that time was so desperate that air power—bombers as well as fighters—had to be used to support ground troops in the linmediate battle area.

one of the best lessons of the war is that better intelligence is needed:

2. When the attack started, the Reds probably had at least 200 aircraft which provided aggressive ground support until the United States air force got into the war. . 3. While the Red were capitalising upon surprise and initiative, U.S. fighters first had to escort evacuation transport planes and ships and then had to escort airborne clements of the 24th Diviflon which were rushed into ground support.

Must lose

7. The war has revealed that no fighter has yet been devised which could, with precision, ferret out the enemy like this one in darkness. Night intruder missions are being flown true enough, but their major effect is harrassment.

In a summary, authoritative sources do not believe that the Redainave proved air superiority unnecessary. They raise the question of what might have happened f the North Koreans had been able to muster strong air power.

Without it, they must lose once the United Nations have something like equal forces on the ground because then the Allied troops will move at will and the enemy will not.-United Press.

morally bankrupt

"Kuomintang leaders are still as morally bankrupt as they were before losing the Chinese mainland," the socialist "New Statesman and Nation" declared.

An article by "a correspondentnow visiting Talwan" says that Taiwan is probably safe from attack by Communist China for the rest of the year, because the typhoon season has begun. Once the invasion starts, however, bridges and roads are likely to be blown up by Taiwanese saboteurs. American - supplied light tanks have therefore been stationed at sea approaches like nillboxes, the report stated, because they could not take advantage of their mobility.

Most of the Communist underground leaders are believed to have been executed in a purge three months ago, the "Now Statesman" said.

eorrespondent declared that Governor K. C. Wu, former Mayor of Shanghal, was the single exception to the picture of corrupt leadership. "He has kept inflation in check, encouraged factories to enlarge, and greatly improved the economic situation: in comparison to what it was. London, August 13. Mr. Winston Churchill, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, today asked the Prime Minister, Mr. Clement Attlee, to consider recalling Parliament in a week or 10 days instead of on September 12, the date announced.

Mr. Churchill, in a letter published today, suggested to Mr. Attlee that the date September 12 was "altogether too remote and bears no relation to the crisis and the new facts which are before us".

Mr. Attice, who had announced the recall of Parliament to discuss defence matters, replied by letter suggesting that Mr. Churchill should see him "to explain why you think that this is necessary".

Atom bomb compared

Washington, August 14. The ordinary atomic bomb is equal in energy output to 20,000 tons of TNT, that daily output of Hoover dam or a moderate rainstorm.

But by comparison with the forces of Nature the atom bomb is a puny thing, the U.S. Government reported today in a book entitled "The Effects of Atomic Weapons."

strong carthquake, for example, generates as much energy as would be supplied by 1,000,000 atomic bombs.

The book said it is groundless to think that the atom bomb could contaminate the world with hurricanes and earthquakes. "To constitute a world hazard. 1,000,000 atomic bombs would have to be detonated roughly one to each 200 square miles of the earth's surface," in a brief

Belgrade, August 13. Today's Communist Party paper, "Borda," denied the Cominform allegations that the former German Field-Marshal Ewald von Kleist had ibeen appointed adviser to the Yugoslav army head-quarters and had been entrusted with working out a plan to attack Albania. After having been sentenced to 15 years imprisonment as a war crinulnal by a Yugoslav court, "Borda" said, von Kleist was handed over to the Soviet authorities on March 5, 1949 to be tried in the Soviet Union for war crimes committed there.
